

PHILADELPHIA.

Imposing Muster of the Republican Host.

The Quaker City Alive with Fireworks and Illuminations.

General Grant's Nomination Unquestioned.

THE SILENCE OF CERTAINTY.

Sharp Fight Along the Line for the Vice Presidency.

COLFAX AND WILSON LEADING.

Blaine, Dennison, Hawley and Lewis Out of Sight.

The Natick Cordwainer's Chances Improving.

NEW YORK 56 TO 14 FOR SCHUYLER.

Synopsis of the Leanings of State Delegations.

THE PLATFORM PROSPECTORS.

Judge Settle, of North Carolina, for Permanent Chairman.

Incipient Revolt Among the Colored Troops.

The German Republicans and Carl Schurz.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4, 1872.

The city is crowded to-night. After a refreshing rain shower the air is pleasant and cool, and the fireworks and torches are reflected in the pools and glaze of the streets and pavements. The delegations have not only filled all the central hotels, but taken quarters in the more obscure market inns, several squares from Chestnut street, and in some cases have leased private houses, furnished at a costly rental.

The District of Columbia Committee has opened a club at 1,000 Walnut street, and kept a liberal table. The Union League Hotel and the new Wigwam, at Broad and Arch streets, are the centres of attraction for street crowds, and the latter has been dedicated amidst the SHOWER OF CANNON AND THE BLAZE OF ROCKETS, by the Harbinger and Allen Clubs. The Union League is brilliantly illuminated and open to visitors of all colors, sexes and sects. Upwards of 200 applications had been made for press seats, and a few gentlemen late on the ground were disappointed in finding accommodations. The Continental Hotel resembled a vast recruiting office, where well-dressed delegates, policemen, gamblers and pickpockets swarmed in and out. The carpets were taken up, and the bare floors are now nicely coated with the different qualities and tints of snuff, representing of our concurring race. The States have all had partial, informal or conclusive ballots. First in consequence, of course, is the Empire State, which adheres to the ticket of 1868 in the main, and gives Colfax the nucleus of his reduced and now apparently doubtful support.

The New York delegation met at noon in their parlor at the Continental and was called to order by Mr. Charles Spencer, who nominated Martin J. Townsend, of Troy, to be chairman. Mr. Townsend, on taking the chair, thanked the delegation for the honor conferred on him.

MR. TOWNSEND'S ADDRESS. We are not here, he said, to devise who shall be President, but to do our duty in expressing the unanimous wishes of our people. It is true there have been attempts to create dissensions, but the matter which may have left the delegates the distribution of patronage in this or that locality, the people are satisfied with Ulysses S. Grant. (Cheers.) There are as well as with his administration as they have been at any time with the administration of any President, not even excepting that of the Father of His Country. The feeling here is for peace, for order, for a strong and efficient administration, but is, nevertheless, of the warmest. The measures of his administration are being criticised, but it is not for that that we will bear criticism. After a while, unless I am mistaken in my foresight, we will find ourselves engaged in a square and open fight between old political enemies, instead of

A WRANGLE BETWEEN FRIENDS. We must admit that a few of our friends have strayed away from the main body, but when the wolves howl, as I believe they will at the Baltimore Convention, let us be sure to be there to meet them. I believe that U. S. Grant will be re-elected by a larger majority than he has ever been given to any candidate. The district from which I am a delegate there are not forty of our friends who have gone off after Horace Greeley. Our people will not follow him, nor will they follow any other man who has been in the past, or how readily they might accept him as a leader if he should return to his old allegiance.

He closed with a stirring appeal for harmonious action. Dr. Ogden Bradley was the elected Secretary, with William Howe as assistant. A debate ensued regarding the propriety of proceeding with the pending business in secret. Mr. Orton, a Colfax man, argued that the delegation might possibly be in the consideration of business, be divided in opinion. We seek a common end, he said, and the question which we arrive at it may be used, if known to the public for

THE BENEFIT OF THE COMMON ENEMY. Other delegates expressed similar opinions, while a majority argued that it was not probable that the delegation would do anything of which they would be ashamed. A motion then prevailed allowing the reporter of the HERALD to remain, and, with that exception, all other persons were excluded from the room. At this juncture a terrapin-eyed man from Brooklyn, remarking that the delegation had made an ass of itself by excluding gentlemen while it allowed a reporter to remain. The call of roll was then proceeded with. Mr. Spencer's name being the first on the list of delegates at large was greeted with a round of warm applause. Stephen B. French, James Winterbottom, William B. Kenyon, James Harper, Wm. Andrews, Daniel Walker, M. D. Barrett, H. Nelson, George Davis, Allen Munroe and H. D. Lakin were found to be absent, but it is quite probable that they will return to-night. Their places were temporarily supplied from the list of alternates. A motion was carried approving the action of the National Central Committee in electing Mr. Cornell as a member of that body for Mr. Greeley, who, in the language of the chairman, was declared to be

TO WHICH MR. SPENCER AND OTHERS OBJECTED. Mr. Lambler then suggested that a name had already been suggested or decided on, which was not a name, but a "give us the name" followed by a declaration, and Lambler was requested to inform the delegates by what authority he had so far usurped the privilege of the delegation in thus revoking a selection without consulting the body. During the discussion, the committee became apparent that a wide difference existed in the delegation regarding this point. Finally the motion was adopted and Charles Jones, Second, Lewis F. Payne, Third, M. E. Sheldon, Fourth, Alexander Campbell, Fifth, William B. Kenyon, Sixth, George Davis, Seventh, Wm. Andrews, Eighth, were appointed by the chair.

The meeting then took a recess until six o'clock. When it resumed, the committee reported the following nominations:—To be members of the Committee on Credentials, Edward W. Fasten; on Permanent Organization, J. W. Hanger; on Resolutions, J. N. Matthews; on Rules and Order of Business, B. P. Carpenter; and for Vice President of the Convention, H. B. Clavin; for member of the National Committee, Mr. Morgan.

All of these nominations were confirmed without a dissenting voice, which occasioned no surprise. From the fact that several delegates were known to be in favor of the selection of either Mr. Opyde or Mr. Cornell as permanent chairman, the National Central Committee's desire for harmony was sufficiently strong, however, to secure the foregoing result. If the proposition had been carried to nominate the National positions Messrs. Morgan, Cornell and Opyde would doubtless have been put in nomination. A proposition was then submitted that the committee should vote as a unit, which was successfully carried by Mr. Charles Spencer in a short speech. An informal ballot was taken, which resulted as follows:—

For Colfax, 50; for Wilson, 18; for Hawley, of Connecticut, 1; for Noyes, of Ohio, 1. Among those who voted for Mr. Wilson on this ballot were Messrs. Jones, Matthews, Payne, Carpenter, and Vandermar. The Chairman was instructed to rate the delegation as above stated—fifty-six for Colfax and twenty for Wilson. The delegates then adjourned until ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Subsequently the fourteen Union men met for consultation and to-night are making efforts to increase their number. It is not impossible that they will succeed, in which event the meeting to-morrow morning will be a more interesting one. The delegates to the chairman. When the delegation commenced its conference regarding the nomination for Vice President only two men, Messrs. Cornell and Charles Spencer were found to be in favor of Wilson.

WILSON'S CHANCES. A great deal of effort is manifested in Senator Wilson's behalf, but there is not much earnest and systematic work for him outside of a few newspaper men, who are actuated by hostility to Colfax. But Wilson has many friends and it is probable that he will be nominated. Outside of the singular newspaper interest which is being exerted on his behalf is

THE LABOR INTEREST. The strong argument that the workers desire his nomination. Were it not for the fact that Colfax is a man of that it is to be charged from the Grant and Colfax ticket of four years ago, Colfax could be easily beaten. This feeling prevails in the minds of many of the delegates, and the effect of the effect among the different delegations. On the other hand, the distinct promise of the Colfax men, and the fact that they are as to the people of the United States, that on no condition would he again be a candidate, is now with almost equal effect. The unusual point of all this discussion is

GRANT'S NAME IS SELDOM MENTIONED. If the whole country did not know that he will be re-elected, it is probable that he would not learn from what he hears among the delegates to the Convention that Grant is even a candidate. Only once during the day was there even a mention of his name. A rumor was put in circulation that General Grant had written a letter to a delegation, asking that they should not require the withdrawal of his name from before the Convention in case of the withdrawal of Greeley. It is stated that the letter was not received, and then told in another shape. This was to the effect that the President had written in opposition to Colfax. A despatch from the White House, reported that the President had written in opposition to Colfax. Then the full of feeling which they had occasioned again gave place to a general conversation over the subject of the election. In this connection it must not be overlooked that the day began with a contest narrowed down to Schuyler Colfax and Horace Greeley. The latter was expected to be at sunrise of being able to harmonize upon a candidate who would have any chance in the Convention. The delegates were divided, and in the North-west, to the surprise of everybody, the other Wilson men manifested great opposition.

BLAINE HAD NO WEIGHT. In New England, the only strength of Hawley, Messrs. Jones and Matthews, who were in the complimentary vote of his State. Dennison had written a letter saying that he would not go into the Convention for a complimentary vote, or in any other way, and that he would not be a delegate, and so the fight was narrowed and ended. If there were the same determination to succeed on the part of Wilson's friends that is manifested by Colfax's followers, or rather if the Colfax men were as determined to succeed, the result would not be doubtful. As it is, the chances to-night are nearly evenly balanced, and nobody can predict with any degree of accuracy the result. The States are working separately, and almost without exception the delegations outside of New England and Indiana are divided. A noticeable fact is this:—

THE RAILROAD AND OTHER MONOPOLIES are working hard for Colfax, and the Washington delegates are in the main in the same line. Nearly all of the delegations met at noon, but nothing was accomplished till the evening. The most of the delegates met at the Convention in its entirety, and though the action of many of them was of an inchoate character when the whole proceedings of the day are considered, they cannot be said to have failed to-morrow. Great eagerness was manifested to know what would be Colfax's strength at what may be the decisive moment. It is generally admitted that the phenomenal and surprising issue of this day's work is the general

to which Mr. Spencer and others objected. Mr. Lambler then suggested that a name had already been suggested or decided on, which was not a name, but a "give us the name" followed by a declaration, and Lambler was requested to inform the delegates by what authority he had so far usurped the privilege of the delegation in thus revoking a selection without consulting the body. During the discussion, the committee became apparent that a wide difference existed in the delegation regarding this point. Finally the motion was adopted and Charles Jones, Second, Lewis F. Payne, Third, M. E. Sheldon, Fourth, Alexander Campbell, Fifth, William B. Kenyon, Sixth, George Davis, Seventh, Wm. Andrews, Eighth, were appointed by the chair.

The meeting then took a recess until six o'clock. When it resumed, the committee reported the following nominations:—To be members of the Committee on Credentials, Edward W. Fasten; on Permanent Organization, J. W. Hanger; on Resolutions, J. N. Matthews; on Rules and Order of Business, B. P. Carpenter; and for Vice President of the Convention, H. B. Clavin; for member of the National Committee, Mr. Morgan.

All of these nominations were confirmed without a dissenting voice, which occasioned no surprise. From the fact that several delegates were known to be in favor of the selection of either Mr. Opyde or Mr. Cornell as permanent chairman, the National Central Committee's desire for harmony was sufficiently strong, however, to secure the foregoing result. If the proposition had been carried to nominate the National positions Messrs. Morgan, Cornell and Opyde would doubtless have been put in nomination. A proposition was then submitted that the committee should vote as a unit, which was successfully carried by Mr. Charles Spencer in a short speech. An informal ballot was taken, which resulted as follows:—

For Colfax, 50; for Wilson, 18; for Hawley, of Connecticut, 1; for Noyes, of Ohio, 1. Among those who voted for Mr. Wilson on this ballot were Messrs. Jones, Matthews, Payne, Carpenter, and Vandermar. The Chairman was instructed to rate the delegation as above stated—fifty-six for Colfax and twenty for Wilson. The delegates then adjourned until ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Subsequently the fourteen Union men met for consultation and to-night are making efforts to increase their number. It is not impossible that they will succeed, in which event the meeting to-morrow morning will be a more interesting one. The delegates to the chairman. When the delegation commenced its conference regarding the nomination for Vice President only two men, Messrs. Cornell and Charles Spencer were found to be in favor of Wilson.

WILSON'S CHANCES. A great deal of effort is manifested in Senator Wilson's behalf, but there is not much earnest and systematic work for him outside of a few newspaper men, who are actuated by hostility to Colfax. But Wilson has many friends and it is probable that he will be nominated. Outside of the singular newspaper interest which is being exerted on his behalf is

THE LABOR INTEREST. The strong argument that the workers desire his nomination. Were it not for the fact that Colfax is a man of that it is to be charged from the Grant and Colfax ticket of four years ago, Colfax could be easily beaten. This feeling prevails in the minds of many of the delegates, and the effect of the effect among the different delegations. On the other hand, the distinct promise of the Colfax men, and the fact that they are as to the people of the United States, that on no condition would he again be a candidate, is now with almost equal effect. The unusual point of all this discussion is

GRANT'S NAME IS SELDOM MENTIONED. If the whole country did not know that he will be re-elected, it is probable that he would not learn from what he hears among the delegates to the Convention that Grant is even a candidate. Only once during the day was there even a mention of his name. A rumor was put in circulation that General Grant had written a letter to a delegation, asking that they should not require the withdrawal of his name from before the Convention in case of the withdrawal of Greeley. It is stated that the letter was not received, and then told in another shape. This was to the effect that the President had written in opposition to Colfax. A despatch from the White House, reported that the President had written in opposition to Colfax. Then the full of feeling which they had occasioned again gave place to a general conversation over the subject of the election. In this connection it must not be overlooked that the day began with a contest narrowed down to Schuyler Colfax and Horace Greeley. The latter was expected to be at sunrise of being able to harmonize upon a candidate who would have any chance in the Convention. The delegates were divided, and in the North-west, to the surprise of everybody, the other Wilson men manifested great opposition.

BLAINE HAD NO WEIGHT. In New England, the only strength of Hawley, Messrs. Jones and Matthews, who were in the complimentary vote of his State. Dennison had written a letter saying that he would not go into the Convention for a complimentary vote, or in any other way, and that he would not be a delegate, and so the fight was narrowed and ended. If there were the same determination to succeed on the part of Wilson's friends that is manifested by Colfax's followers, or rather if the Colfax men were as determined to succeed, the result would not be doubtful. As it is, the chances to-night are nearly evenly balanced, and nobody can predict with any degree of accuracy the result. The States are working separately, and almost without exception the delegations outside of New England and Indiana are divided. A noticeable fact is this:—

THE RAILROAD AND OTHER MONOPOLIES are working hard for Colfax, and the Washington delegates are in the main in the same line. Nearly all of the delegations met at noon, but nothing was accomplished till the evening. The most of the delegates met at the Convention in its entirety, and though the action of many of them was of an inchoate character when the whole proceedings of the day are considered, they cannot be said to have failed to-morrow. Great eagerness was manifested to know what would be Colfax's strength at what may be the decisive moment. It is generally admitted that the phenomenal and surprising issue of this day's work is the general

to which Mr. Spencer and others objected. Mr. Lambler then suggested that a name had already been suggested or decided on, which was not a name, but a "give us the name" followed by a declaration, and Lambler was requested to inform the delegates by what authority he had so far usurped the privilege of the delegation in thus revoking a selection without consulting the body. During the discussion, the committee became apparent that a wide difference existed in the delegation regarding this point. Finally the motion was adopted and Charles Jones, Second, Lewis F. Payne, Third, M. E. Sheldon, Fourth, Alexander Campbell, Fifth, William B. Kenyon, Sixth, George Davis, Seventh, Wm. Andrews, Eighth, were appointed by the chair.

The meeting then took a recess until six o'clock. When it resumed, the committee reported the following nominations:—To be members of the Committee on Credentials, Edward W. Fasten; on Permanent Organization, J. W. Hanger; on Resolutions, J. N. Matthews; on Rules and Order of Business, B. P. Carpenter; and for Vice President of the Convention, H. B. Clavin; for member of the National Committee, Mr. Morgan.

All of these nominations were confirmed without a dissenting voice, which occasioned no surprise. From the fact that several delegates were known to be in favor of the selection of either Mr. Opyde or Mr. Cornell as permanent chairman, the National Central Committee's desire for harmony was sufficiently strong, however, to secure the foregoing result. If the proposition had been carried to nominate the National positions Messrs. Morgan, Cornell and Opyde would doubtless have been put in nomination. A proposition was then submitted that the committee should vote as a unit, which was successfully carried by Mr. Charles Spencer in a short speech. An informal ballot was taken, which resulted as follows:—

For Colfax, 50; for Wilson, 18; for Hawley, of Connecticut, 1; for Noyes, of Ohio, 1. Among those who voted for Mr. Wilson on this ballot were Messrs. Jones, Matthews, Payne, Carpenter, and Vandermar. The Chairman was instructed to rate the delegation as above stated—fifty-six for Colfax and twenty for Wilson. The delegates then adjourned until ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Subsequently the fourteen Union men met for consultation and to-night are making efforts to increase their number. It is not impossible that they will succeed, in which event the meeting to-morrow morning will be a more interesting one. The delegates to the chairman. When the delegation commenced its conference regarding the nomination for Vice President only two men, Messrs. Cornell and Charles Spencer were found to be in favor of Wilson.

WILSON'S CHANCES. A great deal of effort is manifested in Senator Wilson's behalf, but there is not much earnest and systematic work for him outside of a few newspaper men, who are actuated by hostility to Colfax. But Wilson has many friends and it is probable that he will be nominated. Outside of the singular newspaper interest which is being exerted on his behalf is

THE LABOR INTEREST. The strong argument that the workers desire his nomination. Were it not for the fact that Colfax is a man of that it is to be charged from the Grant and Colfax ticket of four years ago, Colfax could be easily beaten. This feeling prevails in the minds of many of the delegates, and the effect of the effect among the different delegations. On the other hand, the distinct promise of the Colfax men, and the fact that they are as to the people of the United States, that on no condition would he again be a candidate, is now with almost equal effect. The unusual point of all this discussion is

GRANT'S NAME IS SELDOM MENTIONED. If the whole country did not know that he will be re-elected, it is probable that he would not learn from what he hears among the delegates to the Convention that Grant is even a candidate. Only once during the day was there even a mention of his name. A rumor was put in circulation that General Grant had written a letter to a delegation, asking that they should not require the withdrawal of his name from before the Convention in case of the withdrawal of Greeley. It is stated that the letter was not received, and then told in another shape. This was to the effect that the President had written in opposition to Colfax. A despatch from the White House, reported that the President had written in opposition to Colfax. Then the full of feeling which they had occasioned again gave place to a general conversation over the subject of the election. In this connection it must not be overlooked that the day began with a contest narrowed down to Schuyler Colfax and Horace Greeley. The latter was expected to be at sunrise of being able to harmonize upon a candidate who would have any chance in the Convention. The delegates were divided, and in the North-west, to the surprise of everybody, the other Wilson men manifested great opposition.

BLAINE HAD NO WEIGHT. In New England, the only strength of Hawley, Messrs. Jones and Matthews, who were in the complimentary vote of his State. Dennison had written a letter saying that he would not go into the Convention for a complimentary vote, or in any other way, and that he would not be a delegate, and so the fight was narrowed and ended. If there were the same determination to succeed on the part of Wilson's friends that is manifested by Colfax's followers, or rather if the Colfax men were as determined to succeed, the result would not be doubtful. As it is, the chances to-night are nearly evenly balanced, and nobody can predict with any degree of accuracy the result. The States are working separately, and almost without exception the delegations outside of New England and Indiana are divided. A noticeable fact is this:—

THE RAILROAD AND OTHER MONOPOLIES are working hard for Colfax, and the Washington delegates are in the main in the same line. Nearly all of the delegations met at noon, but nothing was accomplished till the evening. The most of the delegates met at the Convention in its entirety, and though the action of many of them was of an inchoate character when the whole proceedings of the day are considered, they cannot be said to have failed to-morrow. Great eagerness was manifested to know what would be Colfax's strength at what may be the decisive moment. It is generally admitted that the phenomenal and surprising issue of this day's work is the general

to which Mr. Spencer and others objected. Mr. Lambler then suggested that a name had already been suggested or decided on, which was not a name, but a "give us the name" followed by a declaration, and Lambler was requested to inform the delegates by what authority he had so far usurped the privilege of the delegation in thus revoking a selection without consulting the body. During the discussion, the committee became apparent that a wide difference existed in the delegation regarding this point. Finally the motion was adopted and Charles Jones, Second, Lewis F. Payne, Third, M. E. Sheldon, Fourth, Alexander Campbell, Fifth, William B. Kenyon, Sixth, George Davis, Seventh, Wm. Andrews, Eighth, were appointed by the chair.

The meeting then took a recess until six o'clock. When it resumed, the committee reported the following nominations:—To be members of the Committee on Credentials, Edward W. Fasten; on Permanent Organization, J. W. Hanger; on Resolutions, J. N. Matthews; on Rules and Order of Business, B. P. Carpenter; and for Vice President of the Convention, H. B. Clavin; for member of the National Committee, Mr. Morgan.

All of these nominations were confirmed without a dissenting voice, which occasioned no surprise. From the fact that several delegates were known to be in favor of the selection of either Mr. Opyde or Mr. Cornell as permanent chairman, the National Central Committee's desire for harmony was sufficiently strong, however, to secure the foregoing result. If the proposition had been carried to nominate the National positions Messrs. Morgan, Cornell and Opyde would doubtless have been put in nomination. A proposition was then submitted that the committee should vote as a unit, which was successfully carried by Mr. Charles Spencer in a short speech. An informal ballot was taken, which resulted as follows:—

For Colfax, 50; for Wilson, 18; for Hawley, of Connecticut, 1; for Noyes, of Ohio, 1. Among those who voted for Mr. Wilson on this ballot were Messrs. Jones, Matthews, Payne, Carpenter, and Vandermar. The Chairman was instructed to rate the delegation as above stated—fifty-six for Colfax and twenty for Wilson. The delegates then adjourned until ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Subsequently the fourteen Union men met for consultation and to-night are making efforts to increase their number. It is not impossible that they will succeed, in which event the meeting to-morrow morning will be a more interesting one. The delegates to the chairman. When the delegation commenced its conference regarding the nomination for Vice President only two men, Messrs. Cornell and Charles Spencer were found to be in favor of Wilson.

WILSON'S CHANCES. A great deal of effort is manifested in Senator Wilson's behalf, but there is not much earnest and systematic work for him outside of a few newspaper men, who are actuated by hostility to Colfax. But Wilson has many friends and it is probable that he will be nominated. Outside of the singular newspaper interest which is being exerted on his behalf is

The complimentary vote of the delegates will be cast for Maynard, after which it will be divided. The friends of the Colfax ticket, both these gentlemen are actively engaged to-night pressing the claims of their favorites, but the tide which is setting in so strongly in favor of Wilson will not be so easily swayed.

ALABAMA. has not organized yet, but will do so in time for the meeting to-morrow. So far as can be ascertained by the expression of opinion by delegates the vote will be cast solid for Henry Wilson.

has not all arrived, but a sufficient organization has been reached to warrant the assertion that a majority of them will vote for Henry Wilson. The Convention must close with this delegation before the Convention meets to-morrow.

THE GEORGIA DELEGATION. has a small number of delegates, and will poll a majority vote for Henry Wilson.

will cast its first vote, according to the instruction for John T. Lewis to be Vice President, and subsequently vote solid for Henry Wilson. H. H. Wells, Jr., has been selected for member of the National Committee, and C. T. Mallory to be Vice President of the Convention.

was organized by the selection of Governor Flanagan to be Chairman. A tacit understanding existed that the vote of the delegation should be for Colfax. There is sufficient latent strength for Wilson to change the vote from Colfax to him at will, and it is not such a change would secure his nomination.

TWO rival delegations are sent from Utah, consisting of two men each. One is in favor of the renomination of President Grant, while the other delegation declares itself unqualified in favor of Greeley, and another delegation is in behalf of whom—traitor is a mild term of description in the mouths of all the delegates—has created much trouble for the Colfax ticket.

has selected H. C. Brown to be member of the National Committee, ex-Governor Hayes, revenue reformer, to be member of the Platform Committee, and Jacob Mueller to be Vice President of the Convention.

Massachusetts, is, of course, solid for Wilson, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned without much appearance of a fight. Russell Errett, ex-Chairman of the National Committee, J. B. D. Cogswell, member of Platform Committee, and A. H. Rice to be members of the delegation. The platform is at work for the purpose of destroying the effect of instructions to

to support Colfax. The vote of the delegation will necessarily be cast for him on the first ballot, but it is not probable that it will be divided, and even now it is not probable that result will be reached. A vote was taken in the delegation to-night, which showed 22 for Wilson, 10 for Colfax, and 1 for Hawley. The delegation was made to bring out Dan Cameron, but it failed and was abandoned